Privacy Policy

Bridgeway eReader (the "App") is provided by Bridgeway Publications ("Bridgeway", "we", "us"). This policy explains how the App handles your information.

Last updated: 10 July 2026

Our approach

The App does not collect, store or share any personal information. You do not need to create an account, and you can use the App without providing your name, email address or any other identifying details.

Information we collect

We collect none. Specifically:

- No account or signup is required to use the App.
- The App does not use analytics, advertising or crash reporting tools.
- Your library and reading progress are stored only on your own device, never sent to Bridgeway or any third party.
- The App does not track your location or usage.

App store and device permissions

If you download the App through the Apple App Store or Google Play, that store collects some information as part of the download and installation process. This is governed by Apple's or Google's own privacy policy, not this one. The App may request storage permission on your device so it can save book files locally; this data stays on your device.

Changes to this policy

As the App collects no personal information, we do not expect this policy to change often. If it does, the updated version will be published within the App and on our website.
